

What does Female empowerment mean to Me?

By Marley Brown

Bermuda Institute (Grade 6)

Female empowerment is women who are strong, and who inspire others - my mom, teacher, and Oprah.

When I think of Empowerment, I think of a quote by Oprah Winfrey, it states "You get in life what you have the courage to ask for." This quote made me think of my teacher and how she taught us to not be afraid to ask questions. Our class created a reading cafe by having the courage to ask the community for assistance. We received donations needed for our cafe to be a success.

My mother inspires me because she was the first female black Bermudian to become a qualified florist.

Women continue to prove that balance is better. Woman have different thought patterns, and different skills that make the world a better place. I am reminded by the quote by Ayanna Howard, "Women have a unique power of being able to look at the world's problems and discover solutions that transform lives and make the world a better place."

And, that's the reason it's a better and safer world because female police officers view issues differently and provide answers.
